In the Huddle

By Steve Snapp

Ohio State and Oklahoma are two of the giants in college football lore. That's why today's first ever meeting between the two gridiron magnates has caused such a fuss, especially with members of the fifth estate.

All week long, members of the media have been converging on Columbus in anticipation of the nationally televised contest between the third-ranked Buckeyes and the fourth-ranked Sooners, perennial kingpins of the Big Ten and the Big Eight respectively. In fact, the media coverage for this intersectional clash is so heavy that it represents an all-time high for a regular season home game at Ohio State.

There could well be a record crowd, too. Although Ticket Director Bob Ries can't yet be sure of an exact count, he feels certain that at least 88,000 will pass through the turnstiles. Tickets for this one went at a record pace. And scalpers have reportedly been asking — and getting — outrageous sums for their wares.

All of the excitement seems justified. There is every reason to believe today's game will be an epic confrontation. Buckeye coach Woody Hayes, long an admirer of Oklahoma football, certainly thinks so.

"This should be an enormously great game, one of the best ever played in Ohio Stadium," declared Woody. "We have never played a team with a better record. I expect a close, hard-fought game all the way."

To give you an idea of just how much Oklahoma and Ohio State have dominated college football the past decade, the Sooners are the nation's winningest team the past five years with a 51-4-2 record and the Buckeyes are second with a 49-4-2 mark. Over the past ten years, Ohio State is the leader with an 87-12-2 ledger, while Oklahoma is fourth with a 90-17-2 slate. Oklahoma has won four straight Big Eight championships and the Buckeyes five consecutive Big Ten titles. THAT'S DOMINATION EPITOMIZED.

Statistically, today's opponents appear to be very similar. Both teams are 2-0 on the year. Oklahoma squeezed by Vanderbilt, 25-23, in its opener and erupted against Utah last week for a 62-24 win. The Buckeyes downed Miami, 10-0, in their first outing, before blasting Minnesota, 38-7, this past Saturday.

In two games the Sooners have amassed 805 yards to 865 for the Buckeyes. Both teams have lived primarily by the run. OSU has 672 yards rushing and OU 619. The Sooners have 186 net yards passing, the BACK OF THE WEEK — Rod Gerald, Ohio State's swift junior quarterback won back of the week honors against Minnesota by rushing for 63 yards and completing five of seven passes for 95 yards and one touchdown. Gerald, who completed just 14 passes all of last year, already has 11 completions in 1977.

Buckeyes 193. Oklahoma's defense has surrendered 601 yards in total offense, 300 rushing and 301 passing. The Buckeyes have been a little stingier, giving up a total of just 335 yards, 110 on the ground and the remainder through the airways.

Both defenses figure to be in for their toughest tests of the young season this afternoon. Oklahoma's offense is regarded as one of the finest in the school's history. All four Sooner backs can run from end zone to end zone in :09.6 seconds or less.

"It's the fastest backfield we have ever faced," says Woody. "They will be a real challenge."

The Buckeyes aren't that fast, but don't think for a minute that Rod Gerald, Ron Springs, Ray Griffin, Jeff Logan, Jim Harrell and Herman Jones are slow, because they aren't. And they have one of the better lines in recent years opening up holes for them.

The post game press commentary should be every bit as glowing as the pre-game hoopla.

Where do they come from?

by EDGAR ALLEN, Nashville Banner

Where do they come from, the players on the major college teams playing today and tonight around the nation, as well as the teams you're watching here?

To start with, they are spawned at the grassroots level—more than a million players in 15,000 high schools stretching from Caribou, Maine, to San Diego, California; from Bellingham, Washington, to Key West, Florida.

From there, it's a drastic funneling process, sifting down to about 13,000 major varsity gridders. In other words, about one player in 80 on the nation's prep gridirons this autumn will make it to a major-college varsity roster.

However, there is no equal distribution of that 1-in-80 ratio. According to a recent NCAA survey, exactly 30 per cent of the country's major-college players list hometowns in three states—California, Texas and Ohio—but these three have only 20.7 per cent of the nation's population.

California was No. 1 by just nine players over Texas (1,307 to 1,298), and Ohio is right behind at 1,233, in the in-depth study of the nation's 130-odd major teams' varsity rosters (freshmen included).

It's a tradition: The same three states ranked in the same order in producing consensus all-America players over the last 50 years (California 72, Texas 69, Ohio 60).

On a per capita basis, however, Louisiana high schools lead the nation, producing one major collegian for every 8,480 people, with Ohio and Texas 2-3 and California down in 20th place. Four states in the bottom 25 of the country in population make the per capita top 10—Mississippi, Utah, Kansas and New Mexico.

Of all the major-college teams, perhaps Notre Dame is best qualified to 528 over metropolitan Los Angeles, using a nearly 2-to-1 population advantage (17,150,000 to 8,960,000 for LA) and a lot of help from neighboring New Jersey (more than half—326 players—came from 112 different New Jersey suburbs).

California produces most football players appraise the player-producing areas. For many years the Irish have recruited nationally. Last year's roster included players from 21 states; and except for 26 from nearby Indiana and Ohio, there were no more than five from any other state.

"If our staff were to classify the top high school football areas," Irish recruiting coordinator Brian Boulac answered an interviewer, "I'd have to say Texas, California, Ohio and Pennsylvania.

"Why? Because of a number of factors, like football interest in the school and community, tradition and quality of organization and coaching. Almost all states have some first-class high school programs, but these have more of them.

"Population has a great deal to do with it," he added. "All things being equal, most football players are going to come from where the most people are."

NCAA figures confirm Boulac's population observation. The New York City metropolitan area produced the most major-college players, 603 to

HEAD COACH WOODY HAYES

Woody Hayes and football have become synonymous during the past three decades. So, too, have Woody Hayes and winning.

Hayes, now in his 27th year at Ohio State, is the fourth winningest coach in college football history with 222 victories in 31 seasons. Only Alonzo Stagg, Pop Warner and Bear Bryant have more triumphs than the 64-year old Hayes, who spent three years at Denison and two at Miami (O.) before taking over the Buckeyes in 1951.

Entering the 1977 season, Hayes had won 189, lost 54 and tied 9 at OSU for a winning percentage of .768. In Big Ten play he owns a 139-34-7 record and has captured 12 conference championships. No other conference school comes close to either figure during the past quarter of a century.

Currently Hayes, who has coached longer in the Big Ten than anyone except Stagg (41 years at Chicago) and Bob Zuppke (29 years at Illinois), is working on a string of five consecutive conference titles and an unprecedented five straight bowl appearances by the Buckeyes. A Big Ten crown in 1977 would make Ohio State the first team in conference history to win six consecutive championships.

Overall, Hayes, a native of New Philadelphia, O., has taken nine OSU teams to bowl games and produced national championship squads in 1954, 1957 and 1968. His 1969 squad, which posted a 9-1 mark is generally regarded as one of the finest college football teams ever assembled.

Since Woody has coached at Ohio State, the Buckeye school has led the nation in average home game attendance for 21 of the last 26 years and finished second the other five seasons. At the end of 1976, Ohio State owned a string of 50 consecutive home sellouts.

Hayes has spent his entire coaching career within the state of Ohio. After graduating from Denison in 1935, he accepted a position as assistant football coach at Mingo Junction where he remained until being named head coach at New Philadelphia in 1938. He won 19, lost 10 and tied one at New Philly before joining the Navy in 1941.

Following his discharge, Hayes returned to Denison to embark upon a collegiate coaching career. In the time since, he has become one of the most respected and most successful coaches the profession has ever known.

Cousineau Would Rather Hit Than Be Hit

Tom Cousineau's football career has been spent almost exclusively on the defensive side of the line of scrimmage. That suits him just fine.

"It is much better to hit than to be hit," reasons the Ohio State linebacker. "I remember carrying the ball once in high school. It was okay, but I get much more satisfaction out of playing defense."

Anyone who enjoys his work that much must be pretty good at it. Cousineau is one of the best. A 6-3, 228 pounder with a Herculean build, Tom was a consensus all-Big Ten choice as a sophomore and seems a certainty to capture All-America laurels this season.

He is certainly off to a good start. The curly-haired junior already has 22 tackles on the season, including 16 last week in the Buckeye's 38-7 thrashing of Minnesota. The Gophers ran just 45 plays all day long, meaning the hard-hitting, amazingly mobile Cousineau participated in over a third of his team's total tackles.

George Hill, for one, is not surprised.

"Tom Cousineau is just a great, great linebacker," praised the Buckeyes' defensive coordinator. "He is a great hitter, he can defend equally well against the pass or the run, he can stop a big fullback up the middle and yet he has enough mobility to get to the outside when he has to. Wherever the ball is, is where Tom will usually be."

Cousineau has worked hard to achieve his current level of success. An avid weight lifter, the barrel chested defender works out four times a week during the off season and twice weekly once the season gets underway. He rarely misses a practice and almost never has a bad one.

"My ambition is to get better every time I step out on the field," says Cousineau, his angular jaw set determinedly. "And the only way I know to get better is to work at it."

"I am never satisfied with my game, because I feel there is always room for improvement. And I always feel there is something new to learn each week, because today's offenses are so innovative."

Cousineau, a native of Fairview Park, is quick to credit the Buckeyes' defensive line for much of his success.

"It makes a big difference when you have guys like Aaron Brown, Byron Cato and Paul Ross up front protecting you. With those guys taking out the interference, I am pretty much free to roam the line of scrimmage and clean up," he says.

And what a job he does. Hitting like a freight train, but with all the swiftness of a striking cobra, he is literally a one man wrecking crew, roaming menacingly from sideline to sideline to deliver his play ending hit.

Buckeye Linebacker Tom Cousineau

"Tom is something special alright," says Hill of his open side linebacker, who was named defensive back of the game in last year's Orange Bowl. "He reminds me a lot of another pretty good linebacker we had here a few years ago, Randy Gradishar."

Cousineau also excels in the classroom. He is a solid B student in marketing, although he freely admits he is not sure what career he will pursue once his football playing days are over.

"I might like to go into flying," he says. "It really fascinates me. I'm working on my private license now and should have it by this time next year. I might really enjoy flying commercially. But that's a long way off. Right now I am just going to concentrate on being the best football player I can possibly be."

That, as has already been established, is pretty good.

Autumn in the College of the Arts

Richard Strauss' baroque comic opera "Der Rosenkavalier" will be produced jointly by the College of the Arts and the Columbus Symphony Orchestra with stars of American and European opera houses and faculty and students from the College of the Arts on Oct. 27 and 29.

The annual presentation of studio work in the visual arts by faculty from the College of the Arts is on exhibit at Hopkins Hall and Sullivant Hall Galleries from Sept. 22 to Oct. 17. Media represented in the exhibit include acrylics, clay, metal, glass, photography and weaving.

Sir Michael Tippett, eminent British composer and conductor, will visit the OSU campus Oct. 10-14. Sir Michael will meet and talk informally with students, give seminars and conduct the OSU Symphony Orchestra and Chorale in a free, public, open rehearsal on Oct. 12.

"Hot L Baltimore," a contemporary comedy about the inhabitants of a Baltimore hotel and their reactions to its impending demolition and "The Me Nobody Knows," a recent Broadway musical based on the writings of ghetto children, inaugurate the 1977-78 Department of Theatre season.

This fall the Department of Dance offers a new elective program for non-majors, including classes in modern technique, ballet, jazz and historical dance. In addition to a Student Dance Concert and a University Dance Company performance, the Dayton Civic Ballet and Bill Evans, a modern dance expert, will be in residence to conduct classes/demonstrations for OSU students.

Coach's Corner

DAVID ADOLPH — Defensive Line Coach

David Adolph joined the Buckeye football staff in January, 1977. He works with the defensive line.

Adolph is a 1959 graduate of the University of Akron. He was an outstanding scholar and athlete, winning a special citation for scholarship and leadership. In football he played guard and linebacker and was chosen the top lineman in the Ohio Conference in 1958.

After his graduation from Akron, Adolph was commissioned in the Air Force serving four years. While in the service he earned a master's degree in Meteorology at the University of Wisconsin.

Discharged in 1962, he began his coaching career at Shaw High School in Cleveland the same year.

He was offensive line coach at the University of Akron two years and defensive coordinator at Connecticut from 1965 through 1968. In 1969 he went to the University of Kentucky as defensive coordinator before going to Illinois as linebacker coach in 1973.

Adolph had 15 years experience prior to joining the Ohio State staff, and all but one was on a college level.

Dave and his wife, Julie, have three sons, Michael, Mark and Thomas.

“Some Ohio State alumni are farther from the 50-yard line than others.”

But all have that same intense pride in Alma Mater that marks Buckeyes everywhere. That's why The Ohio State University Alumni Association—the official alumni organization—has more than 80,000 dues-paying members—and why it is the largest by far of all dues-paying alumni organizations in the world! Buckeyes grow everywhere—and the Alumni Association serves Buckeyes everywhere. Whether they're at the game today—or cheering at some distant spot, Ohio State's organized alumni have one overriding purpose: to help our Ohio State University.

Chevy Chevette

43^{MPG} / 31^{MPG}

EPA HIGHWAY EPA CITY ESTIMATE

Smile: You've just read the highest EPA estimates for any car built in America. Ever.

Chevy Chevette with available 1.6-litre engine and standard manual transmission.

EPA figures are estimates. The mileage you get will vary depending on your type of driving, driving habits, car's condition and available equipment. In California, EPA figures are lower.

And keep on smiling, there's more.

Chevette has more head room than many mid-size cars. More horsepower this year.

A hatchback that opens up over 26 cu. ft. of carrying space. One of the tightest turning circles of any car in the world.

A diagnostic connector for quick electronic service checks.

A service manual written for do-it-yourselfers.

A unitized body that's corrosion-protected.

And nearly 6,000 Chevy dealers everywhere.

If 43 and 31 are your kind of figures, stop by a Chevy dealer soon.

He has some more numbers you'll like too: Chevette's price.

It'll drive you happy.

Plan To See Ohio State Hockey

The Ohio State hockey team finished a solid third in last year's Central Collegiate Hockey Association race. With 16 lettermen returning from that team, plus eleven outstanding freshmen coming in, third-year coach Jerry Welsh figures this could be the YEAR OF THE BUCKEYE.

So don't miss the Buckeye skaters in action this year. The season opens Oct. 21 when York University of Canada, coached by former OSU mentor Dave Chambers, comes to town for a two game set. Also on the home non-league schedule are meetings with Providence, Vermont and the University of Pennsylvania. The CCHA home slate includes dates with Northern Michigan, Western Michigan, Lake Superior, St. Louis and Bowling Green.

TICKETS ON SALE NOW AT THE ST. JOHN ARENA TICKET OFFICE WITH A REDUCED RATE FOR PRE-SEASON PURCHASERS.

The Schedule:

October 21-22	York University
October 29	Alumni
November 4-5	Providence
November 11-12	Northern Michigan
November 18-19	Vermont
November 27-28	Pennsylvania
December 2-3	St. Louis
January 20-21	Western Michigan
February 3-4	Lake Superior
February 10-11	Bowling Green

Add leadership to your college schedule.

College military science courses are courses in leadership development. They offer you management experiences which will benefit you in any career, civilian or military.

You can take the first courses as a freshman or sophomore without obligation. Advanced courses, in your junior and senior years, lead you to a position of responsibility as an officer in the active Army or Reserves.

As an Army ROTC student, you'll also have the opportunity to compete for 3 and 2-year full tuition scholarships. And you'll earn nearly $2000 during your last 2 years of college.

Don't wait until after college to get practical management experience. Add leadership to your class schedule now.

He'd Rather Be Number 19

Everyone wants to be number one. Teams and athletes all over the country will begin the upcoming football season with that mutual goal, to finish number one.

But for Oklahoma's crack defensive back, Zac Henderson, there's a catch. He doesn't want to be number one. He'd rather be just plain old number 19.

No, Zac isn't hoping for a collapse of his OU teammates. He still wants to wear another National Championship ring, just like the other two that adorn his fingers. But he no longer wants to be number one in your program.

"I'd always associated a low number, like one, with baseball," explains Henderson. "I wasn't comfortable and told Coach Switzer. He said to check with Coach Baer (Jack, the longtime OU equipment manager) and see if there was another number available."

To Henderson's delight, there was such a number and with the change Zak went from one to 19. "After they gave me the new number I found out that my Dad wore 19 when he played college ball at Texas Tech. That made me feel even better," he added.

Sooner coaches are happy that Zac is happy and that he has continued to play with the style that's made him a three-time all-Big Eight free safety and a three-year starter. Zac will be the "old vet" this fall when the Sooners begin their quest for a sixth straight Big Eight Championship and third National Crown in the past four years.

Last year Henderson was one of the members of "Murder Incorporated," a name pinned on the rugged Sooner secondary. But graduation swallowed up Jerry Anderson, Sidney Brown and Scott Hill, leaving only Henderson as a starter.

Zac will have some talented folks back with him to head off the opposition. Junior Terry Peters stepped in when a shoulder separation sidelined Brown. Bud Hebert and Mike Babb also earned their spurs in battle when the injury bug struck down Anderson and Hill. Redshirt Sherwood Taylor and sophomore Darrol Ray will also challenge for starting time in coach Bobby Proctor's secondary.

Henderson is sorry to see the others graduate but has confidence that the new players can fill the bill. He's not too sorry to lose the Murder Inc. tag, a title they had stitched on sun visors.

"I only wore mine to play golf in, anyway," laughed Zac. "I guess we got the name because we had such hard hitters. Scotty Hill always seemed to come up with a hard hit and Anderson was just mean on the field. There are times when you are in the right position to really lower the boom, and that makes you look good."

HENDERSON

"But I'd just as soon wrap them up and make them fall down. Every play can't be spectacular; even the offense isn't spectacular every time," Henderson adds.

Henderson isn't jealous of his offensive counterparts. He wishes them nothing but the best. "You have to have great expectations for the offense with the people that they have coming back. They deserve all the publicity they receive. They put the point on the board and it's our job to keep the other guys from doing the same. I guess it's just more fun to write about the offense."

"But I really think we'll have a good defense," Henderson says seriously. "We were hurt by injuries to some key people in the spring, but they should be healthy by the time of two-a-days."

Zac is ready to assume his role of a senior leader when those two-a-days start August 16.

"Being a senior and winning the Big Eight means a lot," he says. "That's something I might not have appreciated these last three years. But I want to go out with another National Championship."

Three Women's Teams Optimistic About 1977 Season

With the continued improvements experienced by the women's teams at Ohio State the past couple of years, the fall portion of the Lady Buckeye schedule should once again bring more recognition to both the participants and Ohio State University.

Two of the teams — field hockey and volleyball — qualified for the national tournaments last season, and with each returning several players, the chances for a return trip appear promising once again. The third fall team — cross country — experienced some problems last fall during a coaching transition, but with Coach Mamie Rallins directing the squad for the second season, the future looks bright for the women runners.

Coach Sue Collins' volleyball team got things started for the fall sports yesterday when she took her squad to the two-day Illinois Invitational at the University of Illinois. State's two other teams get into action next weekend with the field hockey team taking part in the Indiana Invitational on Friday and Saturday and the cross country team traveling to Eastern Michigan to meet the Hurons on Sunday.

Here is a brief outlook on the three major fall sports teams for women at Ohio State.

CROSS COUNTRY — Mamie Rallins got a late start in directing the runners last year due to a coaching change, but with a year's experience in the position, the team should start reaping the benefits of her coaching this year. Sophomore Teresa Prince showed promise as a freshman and should be one of the team's top performers this season. Sophomore Sharon Rudder, who ran last season returns, and will be joined by Kim Schmardebeck, a top middle distance performer on the track team. "We'll be a young, inexperienced team," says Rallins. "However, I am hopeful that with sufficient training we can be a competitive team." The Lady Buckeyes will face another challenging schedule with the likes of Penn State, Eastern Michigan, Bowling Green and Southern Illinois. Also on tap are the Big 10 championships at the University of Minnesota.

FIELD HOCKEY — After finishing with a strong 17-5 record a year ago, Ohio State coach Harriet

Reynolds is anticipating another fine season from her team. "We have our toughest schedule ever this year (Penn State, East Stroudsburg State, Ohio University and Central Michigan), but things look very promising for this fall," Reynolds assesses. Much of her optimism is tempered by the return of sophomore Sue Marcellus, who Reynolds calls "one of the best players in the country." The Somerset, Mass., native led the team in scoring last year with 36 goals and should continue to improve. She will be joined by such returnees as Susie Shepperd, Grace Sacher, Andi Dunbar, Christy Freese, Kathy Lorenz and Marsha Keith, all of whom saw considerable playing time last season. Dunbar was particularly effective in goal, recording 11 shutouts.

VOLLEYBALL — Coach Sue Collins' squad finished with a 29-21 record last year, but with experienced personnel returning, chances for a return to the AIAW Nationals look good. "I have been particularly impressed with the attitude of the team in our early workouts," Collins says. "Everyone is anxious to do well and they are willing as individuals to contribute to the team's success." The Lady Buckeyes will have another busy slate, meeting such Midwest powers as Michigan State, Ball State, Southwest Missouri State and Illinois-Chicago Circle. Sheree Keller is the lone senior on a team roster that lists four freshmen and three sophomores in the top dozen players. Second year players Ina Brolis and Karen Alsbrooks have shown considerable improvement since last season and will be two stalwarts. Canadian Mary Ormsby is a top newcomer as are Kim Payne, Louie Dragovich and Diann Gorham.

The volleyball squad will be the first of the three teams to open their season at home when they host Capital University on Tuesday at 8 p.m. The first home field hockey contest is scheduled for Friday, Oct. 14 at 4 p.m. against Central Michigan and the first home cross country meet is slated for Saturday, Oct. 8 at 10 a.m. against Penn State and Eastern Michigan at the OSU Golf Course. All home volleyball matches will once again be held in St. John Arena, while the field hockey team returns to the Biggs Athletic Facility for their games.

At the end of this season, this team will be number one.

The Kodak All-America Team

It's one of the oldest and smallest teams in college football. It doesn't have a win-loss record. It doesn't set rushing records, and it has never scored a touchdown. Yet, at the end of the 1977 season, the Kodak All-America Team will be the number one team in college football.

What this team will have is the 22 very best players of the season. Twenty-two men who have earned the right to be called All-American. No amount of popularity or publicity can put a player on this team if he doesn't deserve to be there. It is a distinction which is earned with outstanding ability, sportsmanship and leadership. And these players have to prove themselves to the toughest coaches of all, the American Football Coaches Association.

The Kodak All-America Team is

The 1977 Kodak All-Americans
...watch for them.

KODAK SPORTS PROGRAM

the only team which represents the choice of the more than 2,000 college and university coaches who are the American Football Coaches Association. Their standards are exacting, for this is a team that for 88 years has included the greatest names in college football.

The 1977 Kodak All-America Team has yet to be selected. The field is large, for there are more than 12,000 players from which to choose. But when the season ends, a handful of men will have distinguished themselves, and earned the honor of being on the number one team in college football.

Teaching excellence — a Buckeye tradition

The University annually presents several $1,000 Alumni Awards for Distinguished Teaching, sponsored by the Alumni Association and the Development Fund, to recognize and give evidence of the importance placed on superior teaching at Ohio State and to provide encouragement and incentive for teaching achievement. A committee that included student, faculty and alumni members selected this year's eight winners based on nominations from those same groups. Two of Ohio State's 1977 Distinguished Teachers are profiled here.

Vera Blaine

To Vera Blaine, professor of dance and recipient of a 1977 Distinguished Teaching Award, the most important elements in teaching dance are recognizing and extending each individual's potential.

Some students, she says, may not be as open or as ready to accept new information as others. "Often in a mind-body operation such as dance, students should receive new physical and intellectual knowledge with a free attitude, so they can experience the knowledge and then evaluate it," she said.

An Ohio State faculty member since 1962, Ms. Blaine teaches dance composition and choreography to upper-level undergraduate and graduate students. She describes her teaching style as informal, but says her grading standards are high and clear-cut.

"Students know what I expect them to accomplish from the beginning of each term," she said. "Thus, they become more self-critical of their own work."

In the classroom, Ms. Blaine encourages interaction. "Peer group analysis is valuable to students," she said. "They learn not only the craft of choreography, but also to develop 'visual literacy' — the ability to see the structure and style of the dance and the concerns of the choreographer."

In addition to teaching, Ms. Blaine directs the University Dance Company, which meets daily and has performed about 30 times this year. Membership in the company includes involvement in many areas. "A student's first professional experience with a dance company will include work in areas such as publicity, production, booking, writing, costuming and management," she said. So the company tries to give students a well-rounded experience.

An Ohio State graduate with bachelor's and master's degrees in dance, Ms. Blaine believes her award honors other members of the department as much as it honors her. "Everybody in the department depends on everyone else," she said.

Thomas Hayes

Teaching is the essence of Thomas G. Hayes — the professor and the man. He says so. And so does his wife.

Dr. Hayes, associate professor of anatomy in the College of Medicine and winner of a 1977 Distinguished Teaching Award, has been a faculty member at Ohio State since he received his Ph.D. here 12 years ago.

He says his interest in teaching began with the good examples of an undergraduate professor and another teacher he had later as a doctoral student at Ohio State.

Dr. Hayes' formula for good human "chemistry" in the classroom, he says, is "good communication between myself and my students. Each of us continues to be a student, including teachers, throughout our careers. I hope I convey this, so my students can become their own instructors."

Such a formula is not too complex, says Mrs. Hayes. "He just likes his students," she said. "He really wants them to learn, to know about medicine and to be good doctors."

Accolades for his success as a teacher originate partly in his constant search for ways to improve his teaching, including use of audiovisual aids, curriculum planning, new testing methods and other techniques, some of them learned from Mrs. Hayes, a former French teacher.

He uses television for some testing situations, but not for lectures. "It's too impersonal," he said. "I like to see the students' expressions, and I watch for body clues — frowns, whippers — to see if they are getting it. My goal is to sense the ones who are having trouble and to approach each one on an individual basis."

"I have seen him agonize over preparation of a lecture to make it just right," says Mrs. Hayes. "There have been many times he has actually studied his lectures just before he has to give them, just to improve them."

Why does he work so hard at it?

"I just love to teach," says Dr. Hayes.
